Gov. Jindal Declares State of Emergency Due to Snow Storm, Urges Louisianians to Get a Game Plan

```
times new roman, serif; color: #000000; line-height: 13.5pt">BATON ROUGE<span style="font-size: 10pt; font-family: georgia; color:
#444444"> - Governor Bobby Jindal held a Unified Command Group
meeting <span class="Object" id="OBJ_PREFIX_DWT332" style="color:
#00008b; cursor: pointer''>today&nbsp; at the Governor's Office of Homeland
Security to get an update on the state's preparations for the oncoming winter storm.
Governor Jindal declared a State of Emergency due to the winter weather and he urged Louisianians to get a game plan for their families. times new roman, serif; color: #000000; line-height: 13.5pt"><span style="font-size:
10pt; font-family: georgia; color: #444444''>Governor Jindal said, "The National Weather Service has issued a Winter Storm Warning starting at 6 AM tomorrow morning for Southwest Louisiana, South Central Louisiana, and Central Louisiana through 6 AM<span class="Object" id="OBJ PREFIX DWT333" style="color:
#00008b; cursor: pointer''>Wednesday&nbsp;morning. We will start to see
freezing temperatures tomorrow&nbsp;morning and then snowfall until<span class="Object" id="OBJ PREFIX DWT335" style="color:
#00008b; cursor: pointer''>Tuesday&nbsp;night. Now is the time to get a game plan for you and your family. As always, we hope for the best and prepare for the worst.
times new roman, serif; color: #000000; line-height: 13.5pt"><span style="font-size:
10pt; font-family: georgia; color: #444444''>"While the snowfall will only last until <span class="Object" id="OBJ_PREFIX_DWT336" style="color:
#00008b; cursor: pointer''>Tuesday&nbsp;night, the impacts of this storm will happen until at least<span class="Object" id="OBJ_PREFIX_DWT337" style="color:
#00008b; cursor: pointer">Thursday&nbsp;morning because of freezing
temperatures in the forecast. We have a plan that will help commuters and businesses that will be on the road, but given the freezing temperatures and the impact on the
```